

Meet Leann Pomaville

Leann joined the Religious Education staff at OBUUC in 2009. She has a Bachelor of Science in Education, in the area of Behavioral Disabilities, for Kindergarten through Twelfth grade. After teaching for thirteen years, and before becoming the mother of twins, she returned to college to pursue Bachelor Degrees in Graphic Design and Film Production.

Leann's teaching career included; teaching special education at a boarding school in Scotland for two years; teaching at-risk students at the high school level in Union Grove for five years; teaching special education middle school children in Racine for five years; and teaching elementary school special education, also in Racine, for a year.

When her twins were born in 2004, Leann became a stay-at-home mother, and due to an interest in her family's health, she began researching safe and healthy household cleaning and body care products. This interest lead her to start an online retail company which sells natural and organic products.

Leann, her husband James, and their boy/girl twins live in Racine, where Leann is a native. Since James is originally from Scotland, they travel to Great Britain and Europe on a yearly basis, and plan on eventually retiring near the Scottish Highlands.
